MARIAH CAREY shares 'A Christmas Melody' as actress and director

BY JAY BOBBIN

It's logical to assume just about any Mariah Carey project will involve her singing, but "A Christmas Melody" involves much more for her.

The five-time Grammy winner not only is a star but also the director of Hallmark Channel's new Saturday, Dec. 19, movie about a youngster (played by Fina Strazza, alias Broadway's "Matilda") who's relocated from Manhattan to her divorced mother's (Lacey Chabert) Ohio hometown. They run into problems with the local PTA president (Carey) – Mom's high-school rival – but a music teacher (Brennan Elliott, of Hallmark's series "Debbie Macomber's Cedar Cove") and a coffee-shop owner (Kathy Najimy) try to make things better for them.

"Dreamlover," "Fantasy" and "Always Be My Baby" hitmaker Carey explains that directing is "something I've done behind the scenes, on music videos, for a long time. I've never really talked about it that much because I didn't want people to think I was doing it as a vanity thing. Really, it's just because I care about the outcome of a project."

"When it came to looking at 'A Christmas Melody,' it really was so I could direct it. I wasn't even going to act in it, which would have been easier ... but this was a really good experience for me. I like my role in it, because she's kind of a funny stage mom who's not the nicest person on Earth, so Lacey and I have some fun scenes together."

And yes, there is plentiful music in "A Christmas Melody," but that doesn't necessarily mean Carey's is the film's dominant voice in that sense.

"We hear a lot of Christmas music in it," she notes, "and an original song that I wrote and recorded, but I changed the lyrics for Fina Strazza so that it would work for the movie. She re-recorded it in my studio in my house, and it's a good performance. Her acting is the main thing, though. She kind of lights up YOUR TV LINK Courtesy of Gracenote the screen; she's really a special talent."

After her appearance in the Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade, another part of Carey's holiday season is her second year of concerts at New York's Beacon Theatre, wrapping up just before "A Christmas Melody" debuts. Those shows are named for her seasonal standard "All I Want for Christmas Is You," and she says she enjoys its use in the popular 2003 movie comedy "Love Actually," as sung by young Olivia Olson.

"I think it's great! I think it was really cute. I don't think I ever knew at the time, when I said that they could use it, that it would become such a big movie ... kind of a classic. As the co-writer of the song, it makes me happy to see people enjoy it during the holidays. It's a great feeling."

Among the filmmakers Carey – who recently got a star on the Hollywood Walk of Fame – has worked with is Lee Daniels (in his drama "The Butler"). Though her immediate future entails a return to Las Vegas to finish up her concert residency at Caesars Palace, and evidently an appearance on Fox's "American Idol" by former judge Carey during its upcoming final season – there's a possibility she could turn up on Daniels' Fox series "Empire."

"I want to play a character, and not myself, if I go on it," she says, "so we have to talk about it. I think he wants me to be in an episode that he directs, so we'll see if it works out. And if not, the show will still be there, but I'd be excited to do it."

*Two clinical studies have shown that binax provides better than normal hearing in certain demanding environments (University of Northern Colorado, 2014; Oldenburg Hörzentrum, 2013); Speech Reception Thresholds (SRT) in cocktail-party situations improved up to 2.9 dB for wearers with mild to moderate hearing loss using Carat binax or Pure binax hearing aids with narrow directionality, compared to people with normal hearing. The new wireless, two microphone Motion and Insio binax models have the same directional performance as the Pure and Carat binax. **with Siemens easyTek™ wireless streamer. JAY BOBBIN'S THEATRICAL MOVIE REVIEW

NOT MUCH HOLIDAY-SEASON LOVE FOR 'THE COOPERS'

A modern holiday tale is one of the trickiest things to pull off in a movie. It has to contend with fond memories of many seasonal classics, and it also faces being too modern for its own good.

For every "Home Alone" that does succeed, there are three or four movies like "Love the Coopers," yet another attempted Christmas-season comedy stuffed with stars and subplots – but, in the end, to little avail, even if several of those stars are Oscar winners.

Diane Keaton (who pretty much made the same movie before with "The Family Stone") and John Goodman play the heads of this clan, and they're on the verge of splitting up. Joining them for the holidays are their grown offspring Ed Helms and Olivia Wilde, and other family members including Marisa Tomei and Alan Arkin.

Each has his or her own concerns and crises, and it all adds up to what you might find on their holiday dinner table: a hill of beans. For instance, Tomei is a shoplifter caught by a cop (Anthony Mackie) who takes more than a felony-charging interest in her, and family patriarch Arkin is upset that his favorite waitress (Amanda Seyfried) is moving on.

Those aren't exactly traffic-halting dilemmas, but even then, they can be intriguing on a basic human-interest level if presented in an interesting way. "Love the Coopers" doesn't have time to be concerned with that, though, it's so intent on jamming so much in ... resulting in proof of the adage "more is less."

Even talents who usually can do something with anything, such as Keaton and Arkin, are hamstrung by the material here. And as if the picture's makers don't trust viewers to follow everything that's going on – frankly, you still can be in kindergarten and not have that problem here – there's "helpful" narration to spell everything out. (Supplied by Keaton's "Father of the Bride"-mate Steve Martin, no less.)

Movies like "Love the Coopers" work best if they have one or two performers or characters you can invest in, but every person in this cast has done better roles and better films. And you've certainly seen better holiday movies.

"Love the Coopers"? Well ... you won't.

Flowers represent a plethora of different things. Whether you are showing you care, expressing sympathy, or just spreading a little joy someone's way, flowers are a traditional mode for doing so. With this being true, perhaps you can celebrate by seeing Tasha Bondaruk at Blooms for You Floral Boutique where she can help you in arranging a beautiful way to express what you want to say.

Some of you may recognize Tasha from her previous involvement in the flower business. She started at a florist in downtown Jersey City and then moved over to Say It With Flowers in Bayonne, where she was a designer and a manager. Having been there for about 12 years, we Bayonne citizens recognized her dedication and beautiful work. After leaving Say It With Flowers to have her son, Tasha continued working at florists. However, fate intervened when her son was old enough to attend school.

Tasha couldn't imagine a better place to open her own flower shop than Bayonne. After all of the years, Tasha felt that this city was truly home and that it was the best place for her to follow her calling and began running her own floral business.

Pleased to be in business for one and a half years since then, Tasha thanks her customer base from Say It With Flowers as well as her newer loyal customers from Blooms for You Floral Boutique.

Tasha's main goal now is to bring back the same cozy allure that she found within Say It With Flowers. She remembers how customers become friends and burgeoned into family. With every intention of bringing that to her own shop, Tasha makes her customers her top priority. In order to do so she creates arrangements that speak to their needs. Instead of working off of a picture or image, she wants to be able to get the personality and situation of her customers and place that into her arrangements for them.

Upon entering this florist, you will see a beautiful decorated Christmas tree, poinsettia plants, holiday arrangements, gift items and candles to choose from for the holiday season or any occasion. Tasha also invites anyone who is seeking advice for a party or a wedding. Blooms for You Floral Boutique does basic and specialty pieces for funerals or any other occasions, but their big mission is to create arrangements that truly hold the essence of the person. Tasha understands that even a specific colored ribbon can make the receiver feel that the gift is connected to the giver, making the arrangement that much more special.

Spending most of their time at the boutique with her son compels Tasha to make her florist as homey as possible. Furthermore, customer service is at the top her list which makes her a huge fan of challenges for any project.

If you are looking for a place where your needs are respected and your arrangements are perfected, come to Blooms for You Floral Boutique. Tasha and her friendly staff will make absolute sure that you feel at home there and leave with the unique arrangement that captures the essence in a way that no words can. Open 6 days a week for your convenience Monday thru Friday 9 AM to 6 PM and Saturdays 9 AM to 3 PM. Like them on , and visit them at BloomsForYouFloralBoutique.com

Parents help their adult kids find love on 'Married by Mom and Dad'

At first blush, the premise of TLC's "Married by Mom and Dad" might seem at the very least a little Old World and at most kind of creepy.

After all, a lot of people might not want their parents selecting a mate for them.

But when you consider everything, the reasoning is sound. Parents know their children probably better than anyone, certainly better than co-workers, most friends or Internet dating websites, so it would follow that they would be best suited to finding their offspring a significant other. Especially when said offspring is either too busy to do it themselves or has had repeated failures.

And so it goes for four singles as they undergo what TLC is billing its "social experiment" that premieres Sunday, Dec. 13.

Christina Rollyson, a 33-year-old travel agency owner from Charleston, S.C., decided to give it a try since her work didn't allow much of a social life. But first she had to get the folks on board

"I called my stepmom," she says, laughing, "and I said, 'Hey, this is what's up. This is what I want to do.' And she knew because I texted her, like, 'It's important. I want to talk to you.' So I called her and she was like, 'OK, you're either married, you're pregnant or you have a dog.' So I told her what was going on and I said, 'Well, I want to get married and guess who is deciding on my husband.' And I said, 'I want you to explain all this to Dad while he's sitting down ... and break the news to him.' And surprisingly they called me the next day and he was on board and he was excited about it."

The process, at least in Rollyson's parents' case, involved them reviewing profiles and videotapes and winnowing down the field to a few, whom they then met. At some point after that, Rollyson met the ones they liked.

"There were a lot of surprises, I will say that," she says. "But it was a great experience for me; it was a very positive experience. You know, you're obviously close to your parents. I'm close to my dad and stepmom but to get to know somebody on that level, it brings you closer together because now they're like, 'Oh, I didn't think that maybe Christina would want this in a guy but she does.' And it just made us talk and communicate so much more, and we had a blast doing it."

And while Rollyson can't say whether she did find love, she is happy with the outcome.

"I'm smiling," she says, "so I was able to get not only closer to my dad and stepmom but all of my family and friends, and I really realized who was there and supportive of me. It was a loving experience, is what it was."

'Childhood's End'
brings Arthur C. Clarke sci-fi to Syfy

The year 2001 wasn't the only one that concerned Arthur C. Clarke.

Before he developed the script for "2001: A Space Odyssey" with Stanley Kubrick, the novelist's book "Childhood's End" had attracted the filmmaker's attention. Ultimately, it took until now for the story to get screen treatment – which it does as a Syfy miniseries running nightly Monday through Wednesday, Dec. 14 through 16.

Charles Dance, Mike Vogel ("Under the Dome"), Daisy Betts, Julian McMahon ("Nip/Tuck") and Colm Meaney are featured in the saga of Earth getting new residents in aliens known as Overlords. They apparently want to bring peace and prosperity to the planet, but they also have secrets, making some suspect their true motives ... for good reason, as it turns out.

Though Clarke wrote "Childhood's End" in 1953, Matthew Graham – who adapted it for television and is among the project's executive producers – believes times aren't that much different now. "He was writing after the world had been shaken to the core by World War II. He was writing at the beginning of the Cold War. Actually, it's all exactly the same. We just have to swap Nazis for somebody else.

"We have a cold war growing," Graham adds. "We are all rattled by events of the last 15 years. So, it's interesting how absolutely all the same things apply. And one man's surveillance is another man's security, and they're the things (Clarke explored) in the book. Some people want to be spied on. They want to be looked at. They feel safe, and other people don't."

Co-star Vogel notes of the world "Childhood's End" depicts, "You're given everything in a wonderful bubble. Everything's great, but it becomes very homogenized and everyone conforms and everyone's the same. My argument has always been that when you look at a lot of great art, a lot of music, a lot of cultural movements ... we don't necessarily need pain for those things to happen. There will still be pain, but a lot of art and music and such has come out of immense pain and immense struggle, and that's sort of the question (the story) asks: Can you have one without the other?"

Indeed, "one person's utopia is not the same as another's," actress Betts says, "so everybody's always going to be conflicting in what they're striving towards. And that's where the great conflicts of our world come from, where we don't agree with someone else. That is the inherent problem in the idea of utopia. It's not the same for everybody, so if we're offered it on a platter, what does that mean for our existence now? This project explores that through these characters."
