FAVORITE SHOWS

"Imaginary Mary" premieres

Melissa Benoist stars in "Supergirl"

David Boreanaz and Emily Deschanel star in "Bones"

Anna Gunn stars in "Shades of Blue"

SUNDAY 10 p.m. on NBC • Shades of Blue
Harlee (Jennifer Lopez) undertakes her own investigation of Julia Ayres (guest star Anna Gunn), since Stahl (Warren Kole) is fiercely determined to bust the politician, in the new episode "Daddy's Girl." Wozniak's (Ray Liotta) deep ties to Ayres are explained as a drug case forces him to revisit the circumstances of his daughter's death. Drea de Matteo, Dayo Okeniyi, Vincent Laresca, Hampton Fluker and Sarah Jeffery also star. New

MONDAY 8 p.m. on CW • Supergirl
Filmmaker Kevin Smith ("Clerks") has dabbled in directing The CW's superhero series, and he does so again with the new episode "Distant Sun," which finds Supergirl (Melissa Benoist) a wanted woman — and not in a good way — as aliens invade National City to claim the bounty issued for her. President Marsdin (recurring guest star Lynda Carter) has plans for Hank (David Harewood), Maggie's (Floriana Lima) ex-girlfriend (guest star Hayley Sales) visits. New

TUESDAY 9:01 p.m. on FOX • Bones
One of Fox's longest-lasting series bids farewell as "The Final Chapter: The End in the End" — directed by series co-star David Boreanaz — really does mark the end of this show. The rest of the team must seek elusive, lethal Mark Kovac (guest star Gerard Celasco) without Brennan (Emily Deschanel), but she eventually rejoins Booth (Boreanaz) for what's destined to be the final showdown. TJ Thyne, Michaela Conlin, Tamara Taylor and John Boyd also star. Series Finale New

WEDNESDAY 8:30 p.m. on ABC Imaginary Mary
Voiced by "Saturday Night Live" alum Rachel Dratch, the computer-animated title character in this otherwise live-action sitcom — getting a "preview" premiere here with its "Pilot" — offers advice to the public-relations executive (Jenna Elfman) who, as a child, invented her. The woman is in a romance with a single dad (Stephen Schneider), and Mary pops up to counsel her. Adam F. Goldberg ("The Goldbergs") is among the show's creator-producers. New

THURSDAY 10 p.m. on CBS • The Amazing Race
Though it was unusual for this Emmy-winning competition series not to have a fall run, it returns here for its 29th season as host Phil Keoghan again sets two-person teams — whether friends, co-workers, romantically involved couples or parent-and-child combinations — on an around-the-world course. They face unusual challenges in various countries, aiming to beat their rivals to each finish line and stay in the game to win the $1 million prize at the end. Season Premiere New

10 p.m. on USA Colony
Will and Katie (Josh Holloway, Sarah Wayne Callies) team up with

Broussard (Tory Kittles) to square off against the Red Hand for control of the RAP gauntlet in a new episode called "Seppuku." Meanwhile, Snyder (Peter Jacobson) helps Helena (Ally Walker) re-take command over the Los Angeles bloc. New

FRIDAY 9:01 p.m. on FOX • Sleepy Hollow
The drama's fourth season concludes with "Freedom," which is what Crane (Tom Mison) and company hope to limit when it comes to Dreyfuss (Jeremy Davies). The villain is ready to exert his influence over the White House, which only can mean disaster on a grand scale if he isn't stopped. Guest star John Noble returns as Henry Parrish. Javina Gavankar, Lyndie Greenwood, Rachel Melvin, Jerry MacKinnon and Oona Yaffe also star. Season Finale New

SATURDAY 9 p.m. on HALLMARK Movie: Love at First Bark
Portland interior designer Julia Galvins (Jana Kramer) faces an unconventional challenge when a pregnant client — who also has a dog with a litter on the way — hires Julia to design a nursery and a "puppy" for her. In the course of the assignment, Julia turns to canine expert and trainer Owen Michaels (Kevin McGarry) for advice and, in the way of all such romantic comedies, the two of them soon feel a connection. Sarah Edmondson, Anna Van Hooft, Natasha Burnett and Reese Alexander star in this 2017 romance. Premiere

Jana Kramer stars in "Love at First Bark"

Tom Mison stars in "Sleepy Hollow"

Phil Keoghan hosts "The Amazing Race"

WHAT'S NEWS

"She played Miss Dorothy in the film, and of course, I was Millie. And whenever we saw each other – in a shopping aisle or down the street or wherever – we dropped our real names and I'd say, 'Miss Dorothy!' And she'd yell back, 'Millie!' I never called her anything else after that." – Julie Andrews of "Julie's Greenroom" on Netflix, about the late Mary Tyler Moore, her co-star in "Thoroughly Modern Millie"

"I just feel like it's a win-win for the actors, for the writers and for the audience. I feel that the writing deepens, the connections with the actors deepen, and I think the audience is feeling that depth as well. I think we're starting a trend." – Lili Taylor of "American Crime" on ABC, on being a part of the series' returning ensemble

"They are both beautifully written parts, and it's just a completely different vein. And one of the things that I like about having played these two characters – and having them on the air virtually at the same time – is they couldn't possibly be more different, one from the other." – John Lithgow of "Trial & Error" on NBC, on doing both that show and Netflix's "The Crown"

Prostitution drives a rivalry and the economy in 18th-century London in Hulu's 'Harlots'

Manville

BY GEORGE DICKIE

The year is 1763 and everything in London is for sale, including its women. In fact, one in five is involved in the sex trade in one capacity or another, among them two ladies who are at the center of a new period drama series premiering this week on Hulu.

In "Harlots," dropping with eight episodes on Wednesday, March 29, Oscar nominee Samantha Morton ("In America," "Sweet and Lowdown") stars as Margaret Wells, a strong-willed madam struggling to reconcile her career choice with her role as a mother to Charlotte (Jessica Brown Findlay, "Downton Abbey," "Victor Frankenstein") and Lucy (Eloise Smyth, "The Frankenstein Chronicles"). All the while, she's fighting off attacks from a business rival, a ruthless brothel owner by the name of Lydia Quigley (BAFTA nominee Lesley Manville, "Another Year," "River"), with whom she has a long history.

As these archivals do battle for their share of the London hospitality market, everything is at stake for Margaret, including her livelihood, her family and even her life.

Morton, who says she was excited at the possibility to work with Manville, producers Moira Buffini, Alison Owen and Debra Hayward and director Coky Giedroyc, admits she was "hungry" to play a character in Margaret that she felt she could do justice to.

"She's incredibly witty, incredibly strong, funny, feisty – you wouldn't mess with her, you wouldn't cross her," Morton says of Margaret. "She's got a code. She seemed very gangster in an honorable way, kind of an honorable gangster-y way, but loyal, incredibly loyal to the people she loves and cares about, and lives by this code. Very brave as well."

And that gangster bravery can most likely be traced back to a hardscrabble childhood of prostitution that came courtesy of Lydia, played with a chilling hardness by Manville, who is almost unrecognizable in 18th-century dress and pasty white makeup.

"Somehow or other, Lydia was her guardian," Manville explains, "but she put her out to prostitution very young and didn't treat her very well in the sort of usual ruthless way that Lydia sees people as a commodity. ... And although Sam and I had various conversations about historically what had gone on, it was kind of up to us to be creative with it but without being too finite about it because I think it is something that will be explored ..."

The series is based on "Harris's List of Covent Garden Ladies," essentially a directory of West End London prostitutes that was published annually in the late 1700s, which described everything from physical appearance to sexual specialties, mostly in complimentary terms, and which Manville calls a "fascinating read."

"It was describing, often in a very witty way, what a woman will get up to and you don't expect to read that," she says. "You know, sex in our culture now, unless it's movie sex, it's a very private thing and people don't really talk about it. So it's quite shocking to have this book where things that really we think of now as being private and not having to do with anybody else were made so public."

"And nobody was moralizing about it," she continues. "It was very open. It was a very sexually open society. It was brazen and, yeah, you could be walking around Soho and see people having sex in an alley. It wouldn't be unusual."

NASCAR driver Jimmie Johnson of the Auto Club 400 Sunday on Fox

- 1 You run marathons?
I haven't had a chance to run a full but I've done a few halves. I've done a Half Ironman, I've done a lot of shorter distance triathlons. I definitely have aspirations to do fulls but the training and then also the lack of available weekends kind of hurt me in that respect. But I look forward to that stuff down the road.
- 2 Does the Ironman training help your driving?
Oh yes, the physical side, of course, obvious benefits. Nutrition, hydration have been big takeaways, and then ... the discipline required, all that crosses over so there's some mental toughening that I think getting ready for some of these endurance events has helped me with - that I can apply to my car racing ...
- 3 Is there strategy there that you can apply on the racetrack?
Yeah, that kind of falls in that mental strengthening part. I mean, you're not comfortable in either. Identifying 100 percent is important. It's easy to over-drive a car, it's easy to go out too fast and blow up in a marathon or something (laughs). So there definitely are some similarities that cross over.
- 4 As you consider your racing career, do you look back on your seven Cup titles and say "Wow"?
Yeah, I'm completely blown away in that my goal is to win a race. So to have 80 wins and seven championships is pretty insane. You know, the other piece I guess would be winning with the different points systems and then all the different evolutions of the car. So when I look at it in the whole, I'm really impressed with my ability to adapt and then certainly the team - they're such a big part of all this as well.

Three 'Nobodies' chase fame in TV Land comedy

BY JOHN CROOK

It's common for a struggling actor to sit in a movie or a play and watch the cast thinking, "Why isn't that me?" It can be even more frustrating when the working actors are close friends or even former colleagues.

That, in a nutshell, is the premise of "Nobodies," a promising new sitcom premiering Wednesday, March 29, on TV Land. Among other things, the show is a valentine to the Groundlings, the West Coast improv company that launched Melissa McCarthy, Maya Rudolph, Kristen Wiig and Will Ferrell, among many others, to TV stardom and beyond.

But what of all those other performers who once shared the stage with those superstars? That's a question that started to take shape for "Nobodies" series creators Hugh Davidson, Larry Dorf and Rachel Ramras as they watched the 2012 Oscars telecast.

The list of nominees at those ceremonies read almost like a Groundlings reunion. Nat Faxon and Jim Rash won an Academy Award that night for their screenplay for "The Descendants," while Wiig and Annie Mumolo scored a nod for writing "Bridesmaids," the comedy that also earned McCarthy a nomination as best supporting actress.

"It seemed like almost every single one of our friends from the Groundlings was at the Academy Awards in gowns and tuxedos and we – weren't. It just struck us how 'the same' we are and how very different," recalls Ramras.

In the world of the show, Ramras, Davidson and Dorf are desperately trying to get a greenlight for their movie script "Mr. First Lady," but no one seems interested unless McCarthy signs to play the first female president of the United States.

"Throughout the season you'll see us still working on getting 'Mr. First Lady' made and still working on getting Melissa involved," Ramras says. "It's a lot of 'two steps forward, three steps back.' In other parts, you'll get to know more about our characters and relationships."

McCarthy, who's an executive producer on the show along with husband and frequent collaborator Ben Falcone, says both she and her hubby play "horrible versions of ourselves" on the show.

"But it's so fun, because everybody up there, we've been friends for 20 years. We've known each other forever," she says during a Television Critics Association (TCA) press session last January.

Still, much like their characters on the show, the three creators had to go to McCarthy and Falcone and ask them to take part in their sitcom. It was just as awkward as it seems on screen.

"Honestly, it's awful," Davidson says. "You go out to lunch with someone and you know in the back of your mind that you're going to be asking this big thing. Melissa and Ben are as sweet as they can be, but the having-to-ask part is still just terrible."

TV Land is so sold on the show that they ordered a second season even before this one premieres. With plenty of Groundlings alumni lined up to appear, and the long working relationship between Davidson, Ramras and Dorf, the creators aren't too concerned they'll run out of story ideas.

They're also not likely to get too cocky about their new success, says Dorf.
