TV PIPELINE

By Jay Bobbin

Q: Why does " Fargo " have a different cast and story every season? — Chris Lang, Bend, Ore.

A: To a certain degree, it could be deemed "the FX effect" of such other series on that network as "American Horror Story," which also is an anthology in nature ... though that show uses many of the same actors from season to season. " Fargo " show runner Noah Hawley also has designed his drama to change from year to year, though some characters stay to be played in different eras by different actors, as with lawman Lou Solverson (Keith Carradine in Season 1, Patrick Wilson in Season 2).

Also, principally movie-based actors often are more prone to take television-series roles when the jobs are only for a limited number of episodes. That's how " Fargo " has attracted such talents as Billy Bob Thornton, Kirsten Dunst and — currently — Ewan McGregor.

Q: Someone told me that the actress who plays Danny's wife on "Blue Bloods" used to be on a soap opera. Which one? — Joan Harvey, Westerville, Ohio

A: Amy Carlson played Josie Watts on NBC's now-defunct "Another World," and she earned a Daytime Emmy nomination for the role. She stayed for five years, then turned her focus to primetime shows, co-starring on such shows as "Third Watch" and "Law & Order: Trial by Jury" before landing the role of Linda Reagan on "Blue Bloods" — which will start its eighth CBS season this fall.

Q: Without Bill Paxton, will "Training Day" be back next season? — Joe Collins, Owosso, Mich.

A: We'll know for sure when CBS announces its full 2017-18 lineup very soon, but it's hugely unlikely that show will be included, largely for the fact that it tragically lost its main star with Paxton's untimely death in February.

If "Training Day" was earning strong ratings, the network might look into finding another actor to succeed Paxton in a different if similar role ... but its numbers were unimpressive enough on Thursday for CBS to ship the remaining episodes off to Saturdays, which is pretty much an indication of lost support when it comes to scripted series.

From 'The Graduate' to 'The Producers,' TCM remembers 1967

By Jay Bobbin

In at least one respect, 1967 was a very good year, indeed.

Some of the most classic films of that decade, and of all of screen history, were released in that 12-month period. On two consecutive Fridays, May 12 and 19, Turner Classic Movies and host Ben Mankiewicz present 50th-anniversary telecasts of several of 1967's best ... and even the most casual film fan will recognize them as attractions that have stood the test of time.

The May 12 lineup starts with "The Graduate" — which had a two-day theatrical re-release at the end of April as part of TCM's "Big Screen Classics" series — and continues with two Sidney Poitier features, "In the Heat of the Night" (which launched last month's TCM Classic Film Festival in Hollywood) and "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner." The war classic "The Dirty Dozen" and Mel Brooks' comedy "The Producers" round out that first evening.

Then, the May 19 half of the tribute opens with Paul Newman's "Cool Hand Luke," followed by Warren Beatty and Faye Dunaway as gangsters "Bonnie and Clyde" and Lee Marvin in the gritty revenge drama "Point Blank." Star turns by two actresses, Catherine Deneuve in Luis Bunuel's "Belle de Jour" and Audrey Hepburn in "Wait Until Dark," wrap up the salute to '67.

"It's terrific," Mankiewicz says of gathering so many films that he's introduced separately on TCM into one year-representing collection. "It's one thing to say it's the 50th anniversary of 'The Graduate' or 'Guess Who's Coming to Dinner' or 'Bonnie and Clyde,' and another thing to realize what a significant, seminal year that was in American cinema."

Mankiewicz is particularly pleased to include "In the Heat of the Night," given the racially themed murder mystery's relevance to the recent Classic Film Festival.

"That was just a thrilling, really exciting night," he recalls, "to be backstage with (producer) Walter Mirisch, (director) Norman Jewison, Sidney Poitier, (co-star) Lee Grant and (composer) Quincy Jones. You're running around, taking photos, worrying about what you're going to say — and you hope you get a moment of, 'Holy moly!' It was great ... and emotional, too. They knew it was special, and it was an honor to be a part of it."

Similarly, Mankiewicz is glad to introduce "Bonnie and Clyde" again, having conducted a lengthy and recently televised interview with Dunaway at last year's Classic Film Festival.

"From 1967 to 1976, starting with — for her sake — 'Bonnie and Clyde' and ending with 'Network,' I think there's no more important 10 years in the history of movies, at least in America," Mankiewicz says. "There are plenty of other significant 10-year periods, but to me, those are the best movies and the most exciting time. And she's on both ends of it, and that's not an accident. She played a critical role in making that era matter."

Ben Mankiewicz hosts two nights of 1960s films starting Friday on Turner Classic Movies.

The kiss of 'Scorpion': Where do Walter and Paige go now?

By Jay Bobbin

It might not necessarily be the kiss seen and heard around the world, but it certainly was seen and heard by "Scorpion" fans.

After adventurers Walter and Paige, played by Elyes Gabel and Katharine McPhee, finally locked lips at the end of the previous story — having circled around that event for the better part of three seasons, and even after he had fired her from Team Scorpion — the aftermath starts to play out in the new Monday, May 8, episode of the CBS series. It won't go so smoothly, since they and the rest of the troubleshooters get stranded on a deserted island in the first half of the show's season-ending tale.

"The closet was small, so there was that to deal with," McPhee muses of the location where the kiss occurred. Gabel adds that after many hurdles getting in the way previously, including Paige's ultimately brief romance with ex-Navy SEAL Tim Armstrong (who was portrayed by guest star Scott Porter), Walter "really didn't have any obstacles. It was the most important scene we've done (in the arc of that relationship)."

The development naturally raises the famous "Moonlighting" question of what happens when two characters kept apart romantically finally get together. "You always want to have conflict in some way," Gabel allows, "because for an actor to play harmony, it's not as layered and there's not as much meat to craft a scene. And for an audience to see that everything's A-OK, it starts to lose its dynamism."

McPhee notes that in finally getting the clinically minded Walter to the emotional place she's been leading him toward, Paige also may be in for some changes.

"Her outlook has been positive on what's going to happen between the two of them," the actress-singer reflects, "but getting stuck on the island is a bit of an eye-opener for her, in terms of Walter letting his guard down and being this hopeless romantic. She's surprised by his inability to be cool about it; he almost becomes more nerdy, the more open he is with his feelings for her, and it takes her aback a little bit."

And as for the forthcoming Season 4? "What I hope will happen," says Gabel, "is that you'll start to see what happens after they live happily ever after ... when the guy gets the girl he's always wanted, but the touchstones of the characters start to show themselves not to be in harmony with each other. I have faith that (the show's writers and producers will) keep it interesting for us."

The Best Of... DANCE MOVIES BY GEORGE DICKIE

"Dirty Dancing" starring Patrick Swayze as Johnny Castle

"Step Up" starring Channing Tatum as Tyler Gage

"Black Swan" starring Natalie Portman as The Swan Queen

"The Red Shoes" (1948) The timeless battle between love and career gets a workout in this Hans Christian Anderson fairy tale about a young ballet dancer's (Moirá Shearer) pursuit of becoming a prima ballerina. Shearer took her share of bumps and bruises making this film, but it also gained her a husband, as screenwriter Ludovic Kennedy became smitten with her after watching it.

"Singin' in the Rain" (1952) Catchy tunes and skillful hoofing mark this superb musical that stars Gene Kelly, Debbie Reynolds and Donald O'Connor, about a silent film company making the difficult transition to "talkies." No surprise it's considered in many corners to be one of the greatest musicals of all time.

"Saturday Night Fever" (1977) Known at the time primarily as miscreant teen Vinnie Barbarino on the sitcom "Welcome Back, Kotter," John Travolta surprised many with his stylish moves in this excellent drama about a Brooklyn teen whose goal in life is to be king of the disco dance floor. For better or worse, this film became the face of the late-1970s disco craze.

"Flashdance" (1983) Pittsburgh steelworker by day, stripper by night, Alex (Jennifer Beals in a breakthrough role) hopes one day to be a ballet dancer, a goal she pursues throughout this 1980s classic. Heavy on nifty dance moves but light on plot, the film is famous for such cheesy lines as "take your passion and make it happen" and the song "What a Feeling."

"Footloose" (1984) Kevin Bacon showed some fancy footwork in this solid drama about a city teen who brings rock music and dance to a small Midwestern town where both are illegal. But it wasn't all him. Five body doubles had to be used in one memorable dance scene where he leaped and flipped in an abandoned warehouse.

"Dirty Dancing" (1987) The chemistry was undeniable between guest Baby (Jennifer Grey) and dance instructor Johnny (Patrick Swayze) in this swinging romancer set at a 1960s Catskills resort and featured the nimble strutting of Swayze, catchy tunes (including the closer "The Time of My Life") and the signature line "nobody puts Baby in a corner."

"Center Stage" (2000) Love triangles, backstabbing, eating disorders – this melodrama about students trying to make it in the grueling world of dance at New York's American Ballet Academy has it all, including some pretty flashy moves by ballet-trained Zoe Saldana, among others.

everyone, one man who wasn't shocked was his long-time friend, confidant and adviser Roger Stone. Channel's 'Farmers' Market Flip'

by George Dickie

It's such a simple idea, it's hard to believe no one thought of it before.

Take two teams of chefs and turn them loose in a farmers' market to shop for the freshest ingredients, which they then turn into a gourmet meal to be served to the show's judges – random marketgoers. The winning tandem takes home a $5,000 prize.

That's the premise of the recently premiered Cooking Channel competition series "Farmers' Market Flip," airing Thursdays. And its host, Jeff Mahin, thinks setting a culinary competition show amid the energy of a farmers' market is a stroke of genius.

"It touches on so many great things," the Los Angeles-based chef, restaurateur and cyclist explains. "You know, you're outside, you're at this market and you're intermingling with people who are going there just to buy food for the week, for the day, and also restaurateurs and chefs. It's such a great epicenter of culinary creativity."

For any chef, a visit to the local farmers' market is a required part of the job. Not only do they find the highest quality meats, fruits and vegetables there, they can also meet the people who produced them and can tell them all about it. They'll learn where the merchandise came from and whether it is at its peak, and also get a feel for who regularly has the best wares. For this, developing relationships with the farmers is critical.

"All the farmers want to be able to educate," Mahin says, "so we saw a lot of the chefs (on the show) using ingredients they've never used before and taking risks because the farmers said, 'Hey, this is amazing.' They were able to taste it right away and then that inspired them to go a different direction or a totally new direction."

Jeff Mahin

What book are you currently reading?

"I'm a cycling coach and I'm reading 'Finding Flow.' It's a really interesting book and the (author, Mihaly Csikszentmihalyi) ... he's sort of the father of the word 'ow.' And as I get older and I realize this application with cooking, this idea with ow is really synonymous with cooking in a kitchen or just life in general. So that's what I'm reading."

What did you have for dinner last night?

"I had baked salmon, because I like baked salmon, and then I had a beet wild-green artichoke salad."

What is your next project?

"I'm opening another doughnut store this summer. That's my next brick-and-mortar project. I just filmed another pilot for Cooking Channel, which hopefully will go through – a little more decadent than 'Farmers' Market Flip' on the food. So I'm excited about that as well."

When was your last vacation, where and why?

"I wish I knew that answer (laughs). I think the last real vacation I took was almost two years ago, September ... and I went to Kauai for my birthday. It was awesome."

HOROSCOPES ARIES - Mar 21/Apr 20

Accept that sometimes things will not go your way, Aries. However, you can learn to adapt and find balance in any situation you find yourself in.

TAURUS - Apr 21/May 21 Discovering all of the answers need not be your goal all the time, Taurus. Keep in mind that the journey can sometimes be more rewarding than the destination.

GEMINI - May 22/June 21 Gemini, don't hesitate to let others know how much they mean to you. Such simple gestures will be appreciated and help you maintain strong relationships with those you love most.

CANCER - June 22/July 22 Cancer, when in doubt, speak with someone who has more experience than you. It's a big person who can accept help when it's needed, and others will be willing to help.

LEO - July 23/Aug 23 Next week may be a better time to make a big decision, Leo. Coast along for a little bit longer and get a feel for the lay of the land before making your decision.

VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22 Coming across memorabilia or old photographs may have you thinking about those who came before you, Virgo. It is a good week for introspection and reminiscing.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23 Libra, don't let any opportunity pass you by this week - even those that may seem like they won't yield much reward. Everything is a learning opportunity.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22 Obsessive thoughts will not make the solution to a problem come any easier. It's better if you clear your head and then maybe the ideas will arrive when you least expect.

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21 Think of something you can do that will be a big risk and out of character, Sagittarius. It may give you a rush of adrenaline this week and pave the way for new interests.

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20 Capricorn, look at yourself in the mirror and tell yourself that you can handle whatever comes your way. You are the only one who can derail your plans.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18 Someone you wouldn't normally look to for advice provides some invaluable wisdom in the days ahead, Aquarius. Heed this advice and express your gratitude.

PISCES - Feb 19/Mar 20 Pisces, instead of focusing on all of the little details, look at the bigger picture. This will prove to be the inspiration you need to stay motivated.

WOLFGANG PUCK'S KITCHEN
By Wolfgang Puck

Gelila is a great cook. In fact, there are some recipes she makes in our home kitchen that our boys prefer to my own versions. Fortunately, we all agree on how great homemade pancakes can be, and there's a good chance I'll be preparing the four of us a batch from a recipe that we all agree is wonderful. I'd like to share that recipe with you too, in the hopes that you and your family will enjoy them any time you want a special Sunday brunch.

thanks to Mom.
BLUEBERRY PANCAKES WITH MAPLE-BLUEBERRY COMPOTE
Serves 4 to 6

For the pancakes:
2 1/4 cups (560 mL) whole-grain pastry flour or whole-grain cake flour
1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1/4 cup granulated sugar
Pinch kosher salt
1 teaspoon ground ginger
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
Pinch freshly grated nutmeg
2 large cage-free eggs
1/4 cup (60 mL) sour cream
1 cup (250 mL) buttermilk
3/4 to 1 cup (185 to 250 mL) whole milk
6 tablespoons unsalted butter, melted
1 1/2 cups (375 mL) fresh blueberries
Confectioners' sugar, to serve

For the compote:
1 1/2 cups (375 mL) pure maple syrup
3 cups fresh blueberries
In a large mixing bowl, sift the flour. Add the baking powder, baking soda, sugar and salt. Add the ginger, cinnamon and nutmeg. Stir with a wire whisk until thoroughly blended.

In another mixing bowl, whisk the eggs until thoroughly blended. Add the sour cream, buttermilk and just over 1/2 cup (125 mL) of the milk; whisk until blended. Whisk in 4 tablespoons of the melted butter.

Gradually whisk the dry ingredients into the wet ingredients. Thin the batter, if necessary, by stirring in enough extra milk for a thick, creamy consistency. Heat an electric nonstick griddle to 325 F (160 C) or heat a large nonstick skillet over medium heat.

Drizzle a little of the remaining melted butter onto the griddle or skillet. Transfer the batter to a large glass measuring cup. Working in batches to avoid overcrowding, form pancakes by pouring from the cup onto the griddle or skillet, using about 1 cup (250 mL) for extra-large pancakes or 1/3 to 1/2 cup (85 to 125 mL) for smaller ones.

Sprinkle blueberries evenly over the pancakes. Cook until bubbles appear and pop on the surface and the undersides are deep brown, 2 to 3 minutes. Sprinkle with a little butter and flip the pancakes with a spatula, then cook until browned, another 2 to 3 minutes.

As soon as you start cooking the pancakes, make the compote. Combine the syrup and blueberries in a saucepan. Cook over medium-high heat, stirring occasionally, until the berries are heated through and begin to color the syrup, 5 to 7 minutes. Keep warm.

Arrange pancakes overlapping on individual plates. Spoon the compote over and around them. If desired, sift confectioners' sugar over the pancakes. Serve immediately.
