A betrayed Ghost seeks revenge as Starz's 'Power' opens its final season

By George Dickie

There is perhaps no deadlier relationship than when a best friend becomes a worst enemy.

In the closing frames of last season's finale of Starz's "Power," drug dealer-turned-legitimate businessman James "Ghost" St. Patrick (Omari Hardwick) was seen cradling his wounded lover, prosecutor Angela Valdes (Lela Loren), in his arms after she was shot by his former partner and brother in arms Tommy Egan (Joseph Sikora), who was actually gunning for Ghost under the belief that Ghost had manipulated him into killing his father Tony Teresi.

And so it is when the stylish New York-set drama returns for its sixth and final season Sunday, Aug. 25, with a story arc titled "The Final Betrayal," the two former pals are now mortal enemies, with Ghost out for revenge against Tommy, a development Sikora until this season considered unthinkable, as he told a recent gathering of journalists in Beverly Hills, Calif.

"That did surprise me," Sikora says, "but I think that it was orchestrated in such a way that ... the spirit was sucked away from Tommy, in a way that he was kind of an empty vessel by the end of that. And so, to put Ghost — you know the other side of that coin — in the same position that he was in at that point, he needed to eradicate the situation. He felt like he was kind of the walking dead and he needed to (kill) Ghost. But when it serendipitously became somebody else, he thought, 'OK, now we're both at zero.' And we have a chance now for redemption in Tommy's mind."

"Hell, is anybody safe on this show?" Hardwick quips.

As for Angela, that cliffhanger will be resolved early on. Throughout the series' run, fan reaction to the Angela/Ghost romance has been strong and likely will remain that way as the show nears its end. For her part, Loren has learned to deal with it.

"You know, as a woman in the world you don't really know," the actress says. "Sometimes it's water off of a duck's back and sometimes it makes you not want to come out of your house. So there's times where I think I feel like I've failed in that, because it gets to you. And then other times where you understand that having a character that's so divisive and kicks up people's passions is also part and parcel with this craft. And that's our services to the storytelling and to really take it to the edge and to really elicit all those emotions from everyone."

Omari Hardwick stars in "Power," which opens its sixth and final season Sunday on Starz.

Bobby and Sophie Flay share meals and memories on 'The Flay List'

Bobby and Sophie Flay have always bonded over food, he as the chef and she as the diner and taste-tester, and now their relationship is front and center of a recently premiered series on Food Network.

In "The Flay List," airing Thursdays, the chef, restaurateur and network personality and his 23-year-old daughter bring viewers along on a foodie tour of New York City, each taking the other to a place that they think is particularly noteworthy. But these picks aren't limited to fine-dining establishments. Far from it in fact, as burger, taco and pizza joints are usually in the mix, with the senior Flay's tastes tending toward Big Apple classics that the two frequented in her childhood and Sophie's running to places she's discovered that are getting a lot of buzz.

As the two sample a single dish, they walk down memory lane and discuss why the meal and the eatery is important to them.

"He brought me to some of his favorites, classics, New York staples," Sophie Flay explains, "but then I got to bring him to different restaurants that are doing the same variation, whether it be a burger or a taco but a little bit newer and fresher. ... Every place that we went to was amazing. Taste-wise, flavor-wise everything was great but it was a very cool opportunity to kind of see what he was used to and what he thinks is some of the best food in New York, and for me to kind of have had that experience growing up and to show him places that I found along the way obviously based off of what he likes and what he thinks is some of the best in New York City."

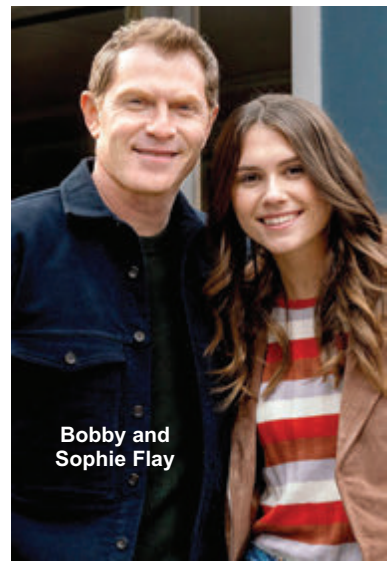

In this Thursday's episode, fried chicken is on the menu, as the pair visit two establishments with totally different takes on the dish.

"Sweet Chick I think is such a fun restaurant and of course the food is great," Sophie Flay says of the Lower East Side eatery. "One of my favorite dishes is the orange chicken with the broccoli waffle, which you might be seeing in the episode. And they're always playing hip-hop. John Seymour is a great guy and has really made a chicken-and-waffles place superauthentic. He's a New York City kid and it definitely feels like a nice little chicken-and-waffles (place) and it's got a great New York City vibe to it."

As for Dad's pick, that would be Blue Ribbon, which touts their bird as being "World Famous."

"I grew up eating that fried chicken," she says, "and he has so many stories from when he was younger about eating that chicken, too, kind of just coming up in the New York City food scene."

"It's always great to go back and go to the places and the restaurants that remind you of home," she adds.

SEPTEMBER IS COMING

As we approach the end of the summer vacation season and the beginning of school, there are some good things to do before the weather changes.

Clean up the litter: During the summer, a lot of people have been walking around outside. Some of them have dropped litter in front of homes and businesses. Now would be a good time to clean up any litter that has accumulated over the summer. It would be best to get litter off the streets, sidewalks, and ground before it gets caught under the leaves of autumn and the snows of winter.

Cut and trim the trees and bushes: If you have grass, trees, or bushes on your property, please cut the grass and trim the trees and bushes. It is best to make sure that your grass does not grow too tall at this time of year. During the remaining part of summer, cutting the grass keeps down the number of mosquitoes and other bugs on your property. It is easier to trim trees and bushes before the ice and snow of winter make it too tough to do the job.

Clear out those backpacks: Those of you who have children in school have probably not looked in their backpacks since the end of the last school year in June. There may be crumpled-up papers still in them from several months ago. You should check the papers for anything important, and then throw the unneeded ones out. Otherwise, they will be taking up space that should be saved for items your children will receive in the new school year.

Go to our final Summer Sounds concerts:

There are rescheduled concerts in our Summer Sounds series. These concerts take place on the lower level of DiDomenico-16th Street Park, which is located between Avenue A and Newark Bay, weather permitting.

On Sunday, August 25, at 7:00 p.m., Moreno Fruzzetti and his orchestra will present Italian and American tunes. Mr. Fruzzetti is known as the Ambassador of Italian Music in America.

On Wednesday, August 28, at 7:00 p.m., Double Vision will present the hits of Foreigner. The band is comprised of some of the area's best professional rock musicians.

On Wednesday, September 4, the Del Satins will perform hits of the Fifties. They performed as the back-up group for Dion on such hits as Runaround Sue.

HOLLYWOOD

By Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD — Disney was determined that "Avengers: Endgame" pass No. 2 "Titanic" ($2.18 billion) and No. 1 "Avatar" ($2.78 billion) to become the top-grossing film of all time. Disney rereleased "Endgame" over the Fourth of July weekend and kept it in theaters until it got what it wanted, a total gross of $2.79 billion. Ironically, Disney has a stake in all three films. It produced and released "Endgame," acquired rights to "Avatar" when it bought 20th-Century Fox, and gained the international rights to "Titanic" in the Fox buy. Disney also now owns the "Avatar" sequels 2-4, with "Avatar 2" due in December 2021.

Brie Larson in "Captain Marvel"

Disney is taking the Marvel Universe in new directions. The success of "Captain Marvel," with "Room" Oscar-winner Brie Larson, who rode the title character (the first time a woman) to a $1.1 billion gross, has now led to another Oscar-winning actress, Natalie Portman ("Black Swan"), becoming the first female "Thor" in "Thor 4: Love and Thunder." Where this leaves Chris Hemsworth is anyone's guess. But fear not, Benedict Cumberbatch will be back as "Doctor Strange" in "Multiverse of Madness." Brie Larson will undoubtedly be back as "Captain Marvel," but first she stars in "Just Mercy," with Michael B.

Jordan and Jamie Foxx, for a Christmas Day release.

Tom Cruise will release "Mission Impossible VII" in 2021 (when he's 59) and "Mission Impossible VIII" in 2022 (when he's 60). He was injured doing his own stunts in the last "Mission Impossible." Cruise may be trying to prove he's still got what it takes to be an action star, but some of us remember his Oscar-nominated acting in "Jerry Maguire" (1996), the kind of action he should now be pursuing.

What does NBC/Universal suddenly have against Steve Harvey? First it brushed aside his hit daytime show "Steve" in favor of a new talk show with Kelly Clarkson. Then a day later we learned it again brushed him aside from "Little Big Shots," the show he and Ellen DeGeneres created, in favor of Melissa McCarthy. Steve's response? "My show is the only show in the last seven years in syndication that has stuck." He still has "Celebrity Family Feud" on ABC, "Family Feud" in syndication, "The Steve Harvey Radio Show" and the return of "Showtime at the Apollo." NBC/Universal may find a itself in trouble when execs try to renegotiate with his "Little Big Shots" co-creator Ellen DeGeneres, whose show is up in mid-2020. As a writer, his use of double negatives made me cringe, but his wisdom and humor is so deep, one wonders if Kelly Clarkson can ever make us laugh as he does.

Showtime puts final touches on 'The Affair'

By Jay Bobbin

To repurpose a famous story's title, it's the end of "The Affair."
The fifth and final season of the Show-

Anna Paquin joins "The Affair" as the fifth and final season of the Showtime series starts Sunday.

time drama series begins Sunday, Aug. 25, with notable cast alterations for its concluding stanza. As its viewers well know, Ruth Wilson left the regular cast last year, and so has Joshua Jackson — but the legacy of their formerly married characters Alison and Cole remains in the couple's now-grown daughter Joanie, played in adulthood (and in forward-flashing segments) by "The Piano" Oscar winner and "True Blood" alum Anna Paquin.

"I had seen the first season," Paquin says, "and when the offer came, I sat down and watched everything else that had come out after that. It says a lot when you're going to presume to sit down and watch four seasons of 'The Affair' ... but it's an amazing show, neatly written and constructed, and it was a special thing to join it."

Though Joanie was seen in the third and fourth seasons of "The Affair," she was played then by much-younger Savannah Grella, so Paquin effectively is creating the character in probing exactly what happened to Alison. "The writing is so compelling, a lot of my work was done for me," Paquin reflects, "as far as who that person is and the place in the story that she inhabits. And as much fun as it is to start out with something, it's also fun to get to be part of a final act."

It seems inevitable that the adult

Joanie's path will cross that of Noah (Dominic West), the novelist turned teacher whose extramarital relationship with Alison set "The Affair" in motion. She also may encounter Helen (Maura Tierney), Noah's ex ... but owing to the secrets that series co-creator and executive producer Sarah Treem (who wrote the final-season opener) wants to keep for now, Paquin refrains from providing such details. She confirms, "I'm involved in a lot of that not-to-be-discussed material and how the entire series is wrapped up."

As Sanaa Lathan and Russell Hornsby return to the cast, also joining "The Affair" for its wrap-up round are Jennifer Jason Leigh, Lyriq Bent ("Rookie Blue") as Joanie's sports-agent husband, and Claes Bang ("The Girl in the Spider's Web") as the intrigued-by-Helen star of a movie being made from one of Noah's books.

Paquin recently appeared in husband (and fellow "True Blood" veteran) Stephen Moyer's movie-directing debut, "The Parting Glass"; she's pleased to build a resume of series work also including "Flack," which Pop is giving a Season 2. She notes, though, that she's "very happy with my work in general. Wherever it is, I'm glad to take whatever job makes sense for my life at the time."

"Country Music"

(PBS — series premiere, Sept. 15)

Director Ken Burns presents a comprehensive look at the history of country music in America and its evolution throughout the 20th century. From its early years in the 1920s, when it was termed "hillbilly music," to the rise of bluegrass and rockabilly, the series also looks at how Nashville, Tenn., became the epicenter of the country music industry. Jimmie Rodgers, Johnny Cash, Willie Nelson, Dolly Parton and Garth Brooks are among the highlighted artists.

IN FOCUS

(Comedy Central — notable episode, Sept. 15)

Alec Baldwin is in the hot seat as a carefully chosen panel of celebrities take shots and needle one another with stinging jokes and jabs.
